

COORDINATORS MODULE • QUIZ

Time for a Coordinator-Filed Complaint?

For each mini-scenario below, indicate whether it would be appropriate for the Coordinator to file a Title IX complaint given the Complainant's unwillingness or inability to do so.

Time for a Coordinator-Filed Complaint?

QUIZ

Student A was groped by a member of her study group in her dorm room after they got drunk together. Student A doesn't want her friends or boyfriend to know what happened. She just wants her professor to put her in a different study group.

Three first year students report that their Resident Assistant answers her door naked, uses her key to walk in on students who have a date in their rooms, and bends the rules for students who flirt with her. They are afraid to file a complaint because the RA has a reputation for holding a grudge.

Student B has been experiencing escalating dating violence in her relationship. The most recent incident required medical attention. She does not want to file a complaint because she is terrified that her boyfriend might kill her.

Student C recently graduated and broke up with his girlfriend, who remains a student. He alleges that she was emotionally and physically abusive at various points during the relationship and wants you to file a complaint since he is no longer a student.

Time for a Coordinator-Filed Complaint?

Student A was groped by a member of her study group in her dorm room after they got drunk together. Student A doesn't want her friends or boyfriend to know what happened. She just wants her professor to put her in a different study group

NO

Three first year students report that their Resident Assistant answers her door naked, uses her key to walk in on students who have a date in their rooms, and bends the rules for students who flirt with her. They are afraid to file a complaint because the RA has a reputation for holding a grudge.

YES

Student B has been experiencing escalating dating violence in her relationship. The most recent incident required medical attention. She does not want to file a complaint because she is terrified that her boyfriend might kill her.

YES

Student C recently graduated and broke up with his girlfriend, who remains a student. He alleges that she was emotionally and physically abusive at various points during the relationship and wants you to file a complaint since he is no longer a student.

NO